Zimmerman Back in Custody

Judge: Defendant lied about finances so he could get lower bond

Miami

George Zimmerman, the neighborhood watch volunteer charged with murder in the killing of Trayvon Martin, surrendered to police Sunday and was booked into jail after having his bail revoked two days earlier.

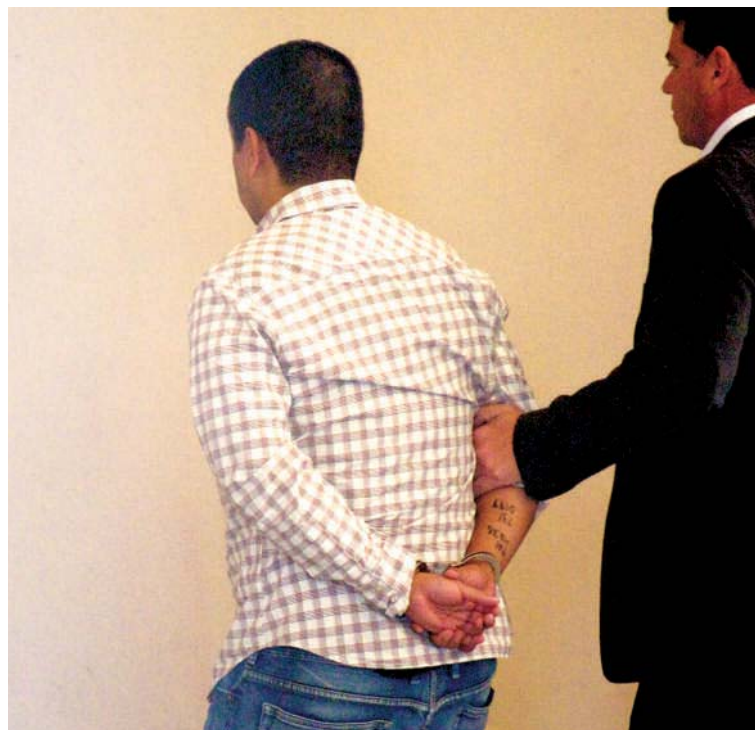

Zimmerman's legal team said in a tweet that he was in police custody. Zimmerman's bail was revoked because the judge said he and his wife lied to the court about their finances so he could obtain a lower bond.

On Sunday afternoon, about 40 minutes before the 2:30 p.m. deadline to surrender, Zimmerman was listed as an inmate on the jail website, held without bail and having $500 in his jail account.

Seminole County Sheriff Donald Eslinger said Zimmerman turned himself in to two sheriff's office employees and that Zimmerman was "quiet and cooperative."

The Seminole County Sheriff's Office said Zimmerman would be in a 67-square-foot cell by himself, separated from the general population, because the case is so high-profile.

Zimmerman's credibility could become an issue at trial, legal experts said, noting the case hinges on jurors

George Zimmerman, left, is escorted back to the Seminole County Jail on Sunday after he had his bond revoked because of allegedly misleading the court about his finances.

"Judge Lester runs a very tight courtroom, as well he should. He didn't believe they were being as straightforward and honest as he wanted them to."

— MARK O'MARA, THE ATTORNEY REPRESENTING GEORGE ZIMMERMAN, SPEAKING SUNDAY AFTER PROSECUTORS ARGUED FRIDAY THAT ZIMMERMAN AND HIS WIFE LIED ABOUT THEIR FINANCES.

Backstory

During a bond hearing in April, George Zimmerman and his wife, Shellie, indicated they had limited funds. Prosecutors said the couple had about $135,000 — raised from donations through a website. Shellie was asked about the website, but she said she didn't know how much money had been raised. Bail was at $150,000. The 28-year-old was freed a few days later after posting $15,000 in cash. Prosecutor Bernie De la Rionda complained Friday, saying, "This court was led to believe they didn't have a single penny." The defense countered that Zimmerman and his wife never used the money for anything, which indicated "there was no deceit." (AP) believing Zimmerman's account of what happened the night in February that Martin was killed.

"The fact George Zimmerman was dishonest is very important because his credibility is the most important thing in this entire case," Benjamin Crump, the Martin family lawyer, said after Friday's court session.

Zimmerman's legal team said Sunday that they will ask for a new bond hearing and they hope his voluntary surrender will show he is not a flight risk. Zimmerman has pleaded not guilty to the second-degree murder charge. JENNIFER KAY (AP)

Jobs Report Used Against Obama

Romney campaign pins dismal gains on a lack of experience

Washington

A weak labor market provided energy Sunday for criticism of President Obama, with the campaign of presumptive Republican challenger Mitt Romney contending that the president's lack of executive leadership experience undermines his policies.

The unemployment rate rose to 8.2 percent in May as the Labor Department reported just 69,000 new jobs, the fewest in nearly a year. In appearances on Sunday's news shows, Obama campaign officials cast the dismal gains in employment as evidence of growth in jobs for the 27th straight month while acknowledging that it was not at an acceptable pace.

The Obama campaign said Congress had not acted on initiatives that would lead to more hiring of teachers and construction workers. However, Romney campaign adviser Eric Fehrstrom put the blame on Obama and touted Romney's experience running the 2002 Winter Olympics and his tenure as Massachusetts governor.

"It's not that we don't think that this president is trying. I think he is. It's just that his policies are not working," Fehrstrom said. "We gave the keys to the largest economy in the world to a person who

Beyond Bain

The Obama campaign's criticism of Congress on Sunday and its attacks last week on Romney's tenure as governor of Massachusetts marked a shift of attention from the Republican's work at Bain Capital, the private equity firm he co-founded in Boston. Republicans have argued that the anti-Bain strategy shows that Obama is against free enterprise. Some Democrats have also been critical of the Obama campaign's Bain strategy and its criticism on Romney's business career. (AP) did not have any prior executive leadership experiences."

Stephanie Cutter, deputy campaign manager for Obama, said an estimated 1 million jobs would result if Congress approved Obama's job proposals. "They need to get off their hands and stop rooting for failure," she said.

With Republicans controlling the House and Democrats the majority party in the Senate, the cooperation required to send a bill to the president might prove to be elusive in an election year.

Study: 'Smart Bomb' Attacks Breast Cancer

Experimental drug combo leaves healthy cells alone in tests

Chicago

Doctors have successfully dropped the first "smart bomb" on breast cancer, using a drug to deliver a toxic payload to tumor cells while leaving healthy ones alone.

In a key test involving nearly 1,000 women with very advanced disease, the experimental treatment extended by several months the time women lived without their cancer getting worse, doctors planned to report Sunday at a cancer conference in Chicago.

More importantly, the treatment seems likely to improve survival; it will take more time to know for sure. After two years, 65 percent of women who received it were still alive versus 47 percent of those in a comparison group given two standard cancer drugs.

That margin fell just short of the very strict criteria researchers set for stopping the study and declaring the new treatment a winner, and they hope the benefit becomes more clear with time. In fact, so many women on the new treatment are still alive that researchers cannot yet determine average survival for the group.

"The absolute difference is greater than one year in how long

Improving Survival

When given the experimental gene therapy for breast cancer, the median time until the disease got worse was nearly 10 months in the women given the drugs versus just over 6 months for the others. "It's sort of a smart bomb kind of therapy, a poison delivered to the tumor ... and not a lot of other collateral damage to other organs," said Dr. Michael Link, a pediatric cancer specialist at Stanford University. The drug is still experimental, so it's not available yet. Its backers hope it will be within a year. (AP) these people live," said the study's leader, Dr. Kimberly Blackwell of Duke University. "This is a major step forward."

The treatment builds on Herceptin, the first gene-targeted therapy for breast cancer. Researchers combined Herceptin with a chemotherapy so toxic that it can't be given by itself, plus a chemical to keep the two linked until they reach a cancer cell where the poison can be released to kill it.

This double weapon, called T-DM1, is the "smart bomb," although it's actually not all that smart — Herceptin isn't a homing device, just a substance that binds to breast cancer cells once it encounters them. MARILYNN MARCHIONE (AP)

1 DUBLIN Irish Voters Back EU Pact

Ireland's voters agreed to ratify the EU's deficit-fighting treaty with a resounding 60.3 percent "yes," results Friday showed, but government leaders and pro-treaty campaigners alike expressed relief rather than joy because of the stark economic challenges ahead. The treaty's approval relieves some pressure on EU financial chiefs as they battle to contain the eurozone's debt crisis. (AP)

Assad: Crackdown Is Necessary

Ongoing bloodshed is required to save Syria, president says

Cairo

Syrian President Bashar Assad defended his government's crackdown Sunday, likening himself to a doctor performing surgery.

In his first speech since January, Assad appeared unmoved by scathing international criticism of his ferocious response to the 15-month-old revolt against his rule, which activist groups say has killed up to 13,000 people.

“When a surgeon in an operating room ... cuts and cleans and amputates, and the wound bleeds, do we say to him, ‘Your hands are stained with blood?” Assad said in a televised speech to parliament. “Or do we thank him for saving the patient?”

Although the country has faced widespread condemnation since Syrian troops unleashed a crackdown on protesters last year, a massacre last week in the central region of Houla has brought fresh urgency to solving the crisis.

The opposition and the government have exchanged accusations over the Houla killings, each blaming the other for the house-to-house killings of more than 100 people. U.N. investigators have said there are strong suspicions that pro-regime gunmen are responsible for at least some of the killings.

Assad on Sunday also denied responsibility for last week's Houla massacre of more than 100 people, saying not even “monsters” would carry out such an ugly crime.

Assad did acknowledge the toll the crisis has taken on the country, suggesting all the blood that has been spilled is necessary to root out the forces working to drive him from power.

Members of the Syrian opposition brushed off his comments as meaningless.

“It is a desperate and silly speech that does not merit a response,” said Adib Shishakly, a Saudi-based member of Syria's main opposition group, the Syrian National Council. ZEINA KARAM (AP)

Prosecutors Plan Appeals In Mubarak Trial

Cairo

Egypt's top prosecutor is appealing the verdicts in the trial of Egypt's ousted president and others, acquitting Hosni Mubarak and his two sons on corruption charges and clearing senior police officers of complicity in killing protesters, an official said on Sunday.

Under Egyptian law, the prosecutor must appeal the entire verdict, which also included life sentences for Mubarak and his former security chief for failing to stop the killing of protesters in the uprising that ousted him last year.

Six police commanders, who faced the same charge of complicity in killing protesters, were acquitted. The verdicts triggered a wave of street protests on Saturday. (AP)

Jet Hits Neighborhood in Nigeria, Killing 153

No survivors aboard plane, officials say, but total toll unclear

Lagos, Nigeria

A passenger plane carrying more than 150 people crashed in Nigeria's largest city on Sunday, killing all passengers aboard, an emergency official said. As firefighters searched for survivors, charred corpses could be seen in the rubble of a building damaged by the crash.

Nigeria's Civil Aviation Authority Harold Denuren said that all the passengers on Sunday's Dana Air flight died. He did not say how many were on the flight.

The Lagos state government said 153 people were on the flight going from Abuja to Lagos.

Yushau Shuaib, spokesman for the National Emergency Management Agency, said there were likely more casualties on the ground, but the number was unknown. He said they were also still trying to get an official manifest on the flight. Sometimes flights in Nigeria issue paper tickets and don't record all passengers via computer.

The plane seemed to have landed on its belly, first crashing through a furniture shop and then into residential buildings in this densely packed neighborhood just north of the airport.

The nose of the plane was embedded into the three-story apartment building. Fire still smoldered everywhere as several thousand people looked on. A group of men stood atop the landing gear that was smoking and took pictures with their mobile phones. (AP)

Three Metro employees were injured when a train headed into this West Falls Church rail yard hit a parked train in November '09.

NTSB Faults Metro Thrice

Board: Critical failings by transit agency were factors in accidents

Washington

The National Transportation Safety Board, in reports released Friday, said critical failings by Metro contributed to several rail accidents, including one in 2010 that killed two Metro technicians.

The NTSB said "inadequate safeguards" to warn when crews were working on the tracks contributed to the deaths of the workers, who were struck and killed by track equipment in Rockville.

The board also found that a train operator's failure to follow procedures led to the February 2010 train derailment at the Farragut North station.

In the third incident reviewed, the board found that operator fatigue led to one train striking another in the West Falls Church rail yard in November 2009.

Backstory

The NTSB reports came three days after a longtime Metro mechanic was critically injured when he was struck by a train in a rail yard near the Shady Grove stop. The mechanic walked in front of a four-car train in the car-wash area of the yard, a witness told Metro safety investigators, according to the agency. Union leaders said they were told that the man lost part of his leg. (TWP)

Richard Sarles, Metro's general manager, said in a statement Friday that "we welcome the NTSB's thorough reviews of these incidents, which serve as important reminders of our No. 1 priority: 'safety.'"

NTSB's report on the Jan. 26, 2010, incident near the Rockville station, in which equipment moving on the tracks killed two technicians, said several factors were at play.

The NTSB cited Metro for having "inadequate procedures" to protect workers on tracks, and it said there is "inadequate federal agency oversight" of such policies. The safety board also said Metro's operations control center had "inadequate communication" among the groups working on the tracks.

In the Farragut North incident, on Feb. 12, 2010, a Red Line train with 345 passengers derailed because the train operator passed a red signal, according to the NTSB. The accident caused $174,000 in damage.

On Nov. 28, 2009, a train hit the back of a standing train in the West Falls Church rail yard, causing minor injuries to three Metro workers. The accident caused about $9 million in damage.

One of the problems, the NTSB found, was that the train operator had "received a limited amount of sleep the night before the accident" and had been awake for more than 17 hours. DANA HEDGPETH (THE WASHINGTON POST)

"An effective safety management system [is] the central part of an organization's operating plan, and it must be understood and embraced by all employees at all times."

Watergate Papers May be Released

DOJ says documents sealed in '72 should be public record

Washington

The Department of Justice says at least some materials sealed 40 years ago as part of the court case against seven men involved in the 1972 Watergate burglary should be released.

The Department of Justice on last week responded to a request by a Texas history professor who is seeking access to the materials which he believes may help answer lingering questions about the burglary that led to President Richard Nixon's resignation. Luke Nichter wrote a judge in Washington to ask that potentially hundreds of pages of documents be unsealed. The judge earlier this year ordered the Department of Justice to respond with any objections.

Department of Justice attorney Elizabeth Shapiro said in a court document filed Friday that the office would not oppose the release of at least some documents. (AP)

Onlookers watch at the 38th annual Fiesta D.C. festival in Mount Pleasant in 2009.

Fiesta D.C. Festival May Have to Move Downtown

Washington

First, Mayor Vincent C. Gray upset some Caribbean and neighborhood activists when he didn't do more to keep the annual Caribbean Festival from moving to Baltimore.

Now, the administration has caused a kerfuffle because it wants to move the Fiesta D.C. Hispanic heritage festival from Mount Pleasant to Pennsylvania Avenue, which D.C. Council member Jim Graham, D-Ward 1, warns could be the beginning of the end for the event.

After hundreds of thousands surged into Mount Pleasant's business district for last year's festival, some organizers suggested that it be moved to a more spacious location, perhaps back to 14th Street.

But District public safety officials nixed the idea, saying they could not guarantee public safety in surrounding neighborhoods if busy 14th street was closed.

"We are working with the organizers right now, to assure that the festival goes on," said Pedro Ribeiro, a Gray spokesman. "It's an important part of cultural life and we want it to continue."

After last year's event in Mount Pleasant, some residents, including civic activist Terry Lynch, wrote Gray complaining that many patrons were drunk, unruly and urinating in public.

"It's too big for Mount Pleasant," one Gray administration official said. "It's no longer a neighborhood event. It's a much larger event."

Can't Face It

Young Americans are more inclined to text than talk, research shows

Chicago

Anna Schiferl hadn't even rolled out of bed when she reached for her cell phone and typed a text to her mom, one recent Saturday. Mom was downstairs in the kitchen. The text? Anna wanted cinnamon rolls for breakfast.

Soon after, the 13-year-old could hear mom's voice.

“Anna,” Joanna Schiferl called, “if you want to talk to me, you come downstairs and see me!”

Anna laughs about it now. “I was kind of being lazy,” the teen from suburban Chicago concedes. “I know that sounds horrible.”

Well, maybe not horrible, but certainly increasingly typical.

Statistics from the Pew Internet & American Life Project show that many people with cell phones now prefer texting over voice conversations. It's not always young people, though the data indicate that the younger you are, the more likely you are to prefer texting.

That's creating a communication divide, of sorts: talkers vs. texters.

Some would argue that it's no big deal. What difference should it make how we communicate, as long as we do so?

But many experts say the most successful communicators will, of course, have the ability to do both, talk or text, and know the most appropriate times to use those skills. And they fear that more of us are losing our ability to have — or at least are avoiding — traditional face-to-face conversations.

“It is an art that's becoming as valuable as good writing,” says Janet Sternberg, a professor of communication and media studies at Fordham University in New York.

The average number of texts that teens sent per day in 2011, up from 50 texts in 2009, a Pew Project study found. And 28 percent of teens (including those with and without cell phones) say they talk daily with friends on their cell phone, down from 38 percent of teens in 2009.

(EXPRESS)

In the most extreme cases, she's noticed that more students don't look her in the eye and have trouble with the basics of direct conversation — habits that, she says, will not serve them well as they enter a world where many of their elders still expect an in-person conversation, or at the very least a phone call.

Is there some aversion to talking on the phone? Not really, says Lisa Auster-Gussman, who'll be a senior this fall at the University of Richmond in Virginia. It's just a preference. In this day and age, it's just what you do.

Auster-Gussman says she sends and receives an average of about 6,000 text messages a month.

Experts say there is, of course, nothing wrong with casual conversation and fun between friends. One could argue that the constant banter — scores of texts each day — keep people more connected. The problem, some communication experts say, is that the conversation isn't particularly deep — and therein lies the problem, says Joseph Grenny, co-author of the book “Crucial Conversations: Tools for Talking When Stakes are High.”

Interestingly, Anna's mom, Joanna Schiferl, is more worried about

Can You See Me Now?

A recent Pew survey found that online video chat is catching on with teens, especially girls. The survey found that 37 percent of Internet users, ages 12 to 17, reported using such applications as Skype, GoogleTalk or iChat. (AP) the effect that texting is having on her daughter's writing skills than her social skills. Anna tends to rush her writing and pays less attention to grammar, or uses abbreviations she'd use in a text. It is a common observation among parents.

So the key, experts say, is to recognize your weak point and work on developing a wide range of communication skills.

“People with a more flexible style, whether they're communicators in person or through technology, will have an easier time adapting,” Houston says — and will help bridge the communication gap, generational or otherwise. MARTHA IRVINE (AP)

Zagat, Google Team Up for Free Reviews

Advice

Google is adding a new entree to its menu: free restaurant ratings from the Zagat review service.

Zagat, which Google bought in September, was charging $25 annually or $5 monthly for online access to its survey of diners. Those diners have rated about 35,000 restaurants in more than 100 cities around the world.

The reviews will be available for free on Zagat.com as well as several services on Google's website as part of a change announced last week. "Now, the world's highest-quality reviews are available to more people, whether they are at their desks or on the go," Zagat founders Nina and Tim Zagat wrote last week on their Google Plus page.

Zagat will still charge $10 a year for using an application designed for Apple Inc.'s iPhone and iPad, although Google indicated it may eventually drop that fee. After a six-month free trial, Zagat charges $25 annually to see reviews on its app for mobile devices running on Google's Android software.

The Internet fees helped protect sales of the burgundy-colored Zagat guides, which cost between $8.75 and $16.

Google Inc. acquired Zagat for $151 million in September to compete against Yelp's popular online rating service. The decision to turn Zagat into a free online service comes as part of Google's expanded local business listings in its search results and the Plus service. The overhaul is being billed as "Google Plus Local" as the company continues to promote a social networking alternative to Facebook's popular online hangout.

A search request for a restaurant that has been reviewed by Zagat will now trigger a listing that includes a breakdown of the service's ratings. Zagat's scoring system provides separate ratings on a 30-point scale for the quality of food, decor and service in a restaurant.

The new business listings will also include any pertinent recommendations from within a user's contacts on Plus.

Bryce Harper, left, heads to the batter's box while fellow rookie Steve Lombardozzi, center, gets a high-five from Ryan Zimmerman after hitting a leadoff home run.

Fast Start Fizzles

Nats' offense goes cold after 2 homers to start the game

The Nationals

Five pitches into the bottom of the first inning, the Nationals had made history and provided ace Gio Gonzalez with a two-run cushion against the Atlanta Braves.

After that fine start Sunday, the Nationals couldn't come up with any more offense and Gonzalez was not his usual dominating self. The result was a 3-2 defeat that reduced Washington's lead in the NL East over Miami to three percentage points.

Washington's Steve Lombardozzi and Bryce Harper became the first rookies in modern baseball history to open a game with

Player Honors

The honors just keep rolling in for the Nats in this turnaround season.

Gio Gonzalez was named the National League's pitcher of the month of May before making his first start of June. The lefty went 5-0 with a 2.25 ERA and 45 strikeouts during his dominant month. Teammate Stephen Strasburg won the NL's pitch honor for April.

Bryce Harper, meanwhile, was honored as the league's rookie of the month of June. The 19-year-old became an instant star, hitting .271 with four homers, four triples, five doubles, 10 RBI, 13 walks and 21 runs scored in his first full month in the majors.

successive homers, the Nationals said in citing the Elias Sports Bureau. Lombardozzi connected on a 2-1 pitch and Harper sent Tommy Hanson's next pitch into the right-field seats.

And that, as it turned out, was the extent of Washington's scoring against the Atlanta right-hander.

Seeking to win his sixth-straight start, Gonzalez (7-2) was uncharacteristically wild. He needed 91 pitches to get through 4 2/3 innings, allowing three runs, seven hits and three walks. He also threw two wild pitches in his least effective performance since April 7.

"I wouldn't say it was a bad outing. It was just one of those outings when you just look at the positive," Gonzalez said. "I was going out there, trying to compete and stay in the game as long as possible. Obviously, their pitcher did a great job."

Meanwhile ...

The Nationals purchased the contract of Mike Gonzalez, a veteran left-handed reliever signed to a minor league deal only a month ago, and optioned right-handed reliever Ryan Perry to Class AAA Syracuse Sunday. Last year, Gonzalez, who has 56 career saves, posted a 4.39 ERA in 53 1/3 innings for the Orioles and Rangers. Perry, 25, had a team-high 10.13 ERA in eight innings. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

After his poor start, Hanson (6-4) blanked Washington over the next six innings to help the Braves end a six-game skid against their NL East rivals. Hanson allowed two runs, six hits and no walks in seven innings.

Harper and Danny Espinoza had two hits apiece for the Nationals, who have lost four of five.

Jason Heyward drove in two runs for the Braves, who had won only two of their previous 11 games. That slide included four losses to Washington by a combined 25-10 score. DAVID GINSBURG (AP)

Draft Choices

The Nats have the 16th overall selection in Monday night's major league draft, their worst position since 2003, when they had the 20th choice, making their choice far less clear. Here are six players they could choose with their first-round pick.

MICHAEL WACHA RHP, TEXAS A&M

A classic Mike Rizzo first-round pitcher — tall (6-6), hard-throwing (his fastball reaches 96 miles per hour) and coming out of college.

DEVEN MARRERO SS, ARIZONA STATE

The cousin of Nationals' first baseman Chris Marrero is widely considered the second-best middle infielder available.

DAVID DAHL OF, OAK MTN. HIGH (ALA.)

Dahl, who worked out for the Nationals, has above-average power for a potential center fielder, but some have questioned his effort.

ANDREW HEANEY LHP, OKLA. STATE

The best left-handed college pitcher in the draft is a strikeout machine (10.65 per nine innings) with advanced offspeed pitches.

MARCUS STROMAN RHP, DUKE

The Nationals see him as a starter, but the pitcher draws comparisons to Tom Gordon, because his stature (5-9) and biting slider may be advanced enough for him to reach the majors as a reliever this fall. (AP/TWP)

'Unbelievable' shot carries Woods to a comeback victory

Golf

Tiger Woods picked the right place to match Jack Nicklaus for career PGA Tour wins, and with a shot that even left Nicklaus amazed.

Two shots behind with three holes to play, his ball in an impossible spot behind the 16th green, Woods holed a flop shot from 50 feet away that turned bogey into birdie and sent him on his way to a stunning comeback Sunday in the Memorial.

Woods made three birdies on his last four holes for a 5-under 67, matching the lowest score of the final round, and he finished in style. He hit 9-iron to just inside 10 feet, and raised his putter — a pose that Nicklaus made famous for so many years — well before the ball tumbled into the cup.

It was his fifth win at Muirfield Village, and the 73rd of his PGA Tour career to match Nicklaus at No. 2 on the all-time list. Sam Snead won a record 82 times.

For Woods, it was a dramatic end to his worst three-tournament stretch as a pro, and it came with the U.S. Open looming.

He started the day four shots behind and wound up with a two-shot victory over Andres Romero (67) and Rory Sabbatini, who was in control of the tournament until he fell victim again to some old magic by Woods.

Woods said he didn't miss a shot all day, though that flop shot stands out. "The most unbelievable, gutsy shot I've ever seen," Nicklaus said from the TV booth. "If he's short, the tournament is over. If he's long, the tournament is over. He puts it in the hole." (AP)

Mystics Continue Their Losing Ways Against Sun

The Mystics

Tina Charles had 30 points, nine rebounds and four assists, and the Connecticut Sun beat the Washington Mystics, 94-86, on Sunday.

Kara Lawson had 18 points and four assists for the Sun (4-1). Asjha Jones added 10 points, four rebounds and two steals. Connecticut shot 52.5 percent from the floor. Washington was nearly as good, shooting 48.5 percent.

Crystal Langhorne had 25 points and five rebounds for the Mystics (1-4). Reserve Jasmine Thomas scored 17 points with three steals.

It was the third-straight loss for the Mystics. They've lost eight of their last nine games dating back to last season.

The Sun led by as much as 14 points (57-43) in the third quarter, but Washington kept fighting back.

Connecticut was clinging to a four-point lead with less than two minutes remaining in the game when it managed to get a little breathing room. Lawson's layup and two free throws by Kalana Greene pushed the Sun ahead, 84-76, with 1:06 remaining.

The Mystics continued to fire away at Connecticut, though. Thomas and Noelle Quinn made back-to-back 3-pointers to cut it to 90-86 with 19.5 seconds left. (AP)

The always-busy Dr. Ruth Westheimer, left, signs copies of her latest book, "Sexually Speaking," a women's guide to sexual health.

Still 'Speaking' Up

Dr. Ruth Westheimer, who declared it healthy to talk about sex, hasn't had her last word yet

Personalities

There's no mistaking the elfin figure in the size-4, blue suede mocs who answers the door. This despite the fact that her hair, only recently lifted from the pillow, is uncharacteristically swept up. Or that a visitor might look right over her 4-foot-7 frame to the panoramic view of the Hudson River that fills the living-room window.

But there will never be any confusing — and no ignoring — that voice.

"Good!" Ruth Westheimer declares as a greeting in the singular guttural trill described as equal parts Grandma and Freud. "You don't have a photographer, so I don't comb my hair!"

With the celebrated sex therapist marking her 84th birthday Monday, the voice has aged but certainly not mellowed, so that it sounds even more the way the father of psychoanalysis would if he were alive and female.

When Westheimer — who fled Nazi Germany as a child — reached the U.S. in 1956, people told her she had to lose the accent. But with a job that paid $1 an hour and a baby daughter to care for, she had neither the money nor the time for speech lessons. Now, an actress who will play her onstage is paying a dialect coach so that she can sound just like Dr. Ruth.

"It's nice to be Dr. Ruth," she says. "Put that down."

It's been nearly 32 years since Westheimer broke into late-night New York radio with "Sexually Speaking." The voice that Westheimer found on radio, and in books and television shows, pushed the boundaries of popular culture, declaring it not just safe, but healthy, for people to speak explicitly about their sex lives.

"What, am I going to play mahjong or canasta or go for an early-bird dinner?"

It's been years since Dr. Ruth's last TV or radio series. And she sees just a few patients for private counseling now. But she can't stop speaking up.

There's the new book, "Sexually Speaking," her 36th, a women's guide to sexual health. And her syndicated column. She's also putting her name on a wine, Dr. Ruth's Vin D'Amour. Next fall, she'll teach a class on families and television at Columbia University. In June, Westheimer will be in the audience when actress Debra Jo Rupp stars in a one-woman play, "Dr. Ruth: All the Way," about her life.

Westheimer says she wouldn't have it any other way. She fondly repeats an aphorism she once heard: "Never retire, just rewire."

"What am I going to do, sit with all the old people?" she asks. "What, am I going to play mahjong or canasta or go for an early-bird dinner?"

Time for His 'Lazy Sunday': Andy Samberg has wrapped his seven-season run on "Saturday Night Live." The actor's exit follows that of cast mate Kristen Wiig. Samberg can now be seen on the big screen. His new movie with Adam Sandler, "That's My Boy," is out June 15. Samberg's "SNL" highlights reel would feature his satiric rap videos including "Lazy Sunday" and a memorable one with Justin Timberlake about an X-rated gift in a box, which won an Emmy Award in 2007. Computer gamers battle red-skinned demons in "Diablo III," the latest entry in the epic fantasy role-playing game series.

A Devil You Know

'Diablo III' is a classic role-playing game with addictive action

Video Game Review

The epic fantasy genre has matured in the past decade, thanks to writers like "Game of Thrones" mastermind George R.R. Martin who are less interested in the eternal conflict between good and evil than in the gray areas in between. Video games have followed suit, with ambitious adventures such as "Dragon Age: Origins," "The Witcher II" and "The Elder Scrolls V: Skyrim" refusing to define their heroes and villains so neatly.

So when "Diablo III" (PC/Mac, $59.99) arrived last month with the tagline "Evil Is Back," it was hard not to look at it as a throwback of sorts. You know who the troublemakers are in this game: They have red skin, glowing eyes and razor-sharp horns. It's the devil you know.

That's not the only thing that will make players wonder where the developers have been since "Diablo II" came out in 2000. The top-down, god's-eye perspective takes some readjustment after years of battling from protagonist's point of view. And the combat, at the default setting, rarely demands more than hacking and slashing your way through hordes of easily dispatched monsters.

And yet, it's nearly irresistible.

You start by choosing a character from one of five archetypes: the barbarian and monk, who fight up-close; the demon hunter, who uses long-range weapons; and the wizard and witch doctor, who wield magic. After a brief video setting up the tale — a falling star has crashed into the human world, Sanctuary — you're thrust into the fray.

Once you get into its rhythm — fight, collect your rewards, fight — "Diablo III" is very hard to shut down.

After one prolonged session of monster slaying, as the clock approached 4 a.m., a supporting character asked my demon hunter: "Do you ever become weary of strife? Of constant fighting?"

His response: "Rest is a luxury I cannot afford." You'll feel the same way after a few hours of "Diablo III." LOU KESTEN (AP)

Richard Dawson hosted "Family Feud" from 1976 to 1985 and from 1994 to 1995.

Dawson's Last Kiss Goodbye

Obituary

Richard Dawson, the wisecracking British-born entertainer who was among the schemers in the '60s sitcom "Hogan's Heroes" and a decade later began kissing thousands of female contestants as host of the game show "Family Feud," died Saturday from complications related to esophageal cancer. He was 79.

Tom Shales of The Washington Post called him "the fastest, brightest and most beguilingly caustic interlocutor since the late great Groucho bantered and parried on 'You Bet Your Life.'"

Dawson won a daytime Emmy Award in 1978 as best TV game show host. (AP)

1 It's Miller Time

Old 97's singer Rhett Miller, who has pretty eyes and makes pretty music (generally alt-country), appears with his other band, the Serial Lady Killers, tonight. Miller has friends in high places, as evidenced by Rosanne Cash's and Rachael Yamagata's appearances on his newest album (you'll have to settle for Miller and the band this time around). Jammin Java, 227 Maple St. E, Vienna, Va.; Mon., $20-$22; 703-255-1566, Jamminjava.com.

2 Collateral Damage

News of the violence in Central America, particularly that stemming from the War on Drugs, is in the papers every day. This evening's panel (consisting of journalists, human rights activists and Nobel Peace Laureate Jody Williams) will focus on violence against women in Mexico and nearby countries. United States Institute of Peace, 2301 Constitution Ave. NW; Mon., 6 p.m., free; Nobelwomensinitiative.org. ### 3 All That Jazz, All the Time

Jazz! Jazz everywhere! People in berets and sunglasses snapping and going "yeah, man" like some sort of beatnik zombie invasion! DC Jazz Fest runs through Sunday, bringing together countless artists and the people who love them. There are activities for kids, classes and, of course, concerts. Sundance profiles four women who are wheelchair-bound

Reality

SUND. 10:00 In the opening moments of a new reality show, a pretty blonde pulls up to a gas station in her sporty Mustang. As she fills the tank, she catches the eye of a man across the station and smiles. Soon she drives away, waving to her admirer as she leaves.

Another Kardashian-style series? Not quite. Around her fueling and flirting, we also see the woman assembling a wheelchair, popping herself into it and then disassembling the chair before driving off.

The blonde is 28-year-old Tiphany Adams, one of the stars of "Push Girls," a Sundance Channel reality series premiering Monday that takes viewers into the lives of four beautiful wheelchair-bound women.

All paralyzed through injury or illness, Adams and her three best friends — Mia Schaikewitz, 33, Auti Angel, 42, and Angela Rockwood, 36 — are shown navigating everyday challenges of all sizes, from putting on makeup to starting a family.

It's an unprecedented look at the lives of disabled women, catheters and all, and either a new high or new low for reality TV.

"As a community, we say we want to be treated like everyone else. Well, everyone else has a reality show," says Paul Tobin, president of United Spinal Association, an advocacy organization for people with spinal cord injuries.

"These aren't the 'Mob Wives,'" he adds. "My belief is that 'Push Girls' will help dispel preconceived notions by showing people living their lives and enjoying the same things as everyone else, just a little bit differently." SANDY COHEN (AP)

Horoscope

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your desire to help another in need is likely to overpower any instinct you have to do something for yourself. This is to be admired.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll encounter someone who seems immune to both your natural charms and your powers of persuasion. This is a tricky situation!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may find current circumstances quite dispiriting at this time. Focus not on what you now see, but what may soon come to pass.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're more interested in seeing someone close to you succeed today than you are in promoting your own agenda. You can offer valuable help.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Don't let someone else's expertise keep you from looking into a certain situation yourself. You can uncover the truth.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You'll want to approach the day in a conservative manner — at least until you understand more fully what is required of you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may doubt your own motives or methods today. Someone else is in your corner, however, who can do much to propel you toward success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A close friend is likely to understand why you are doing what you are doing far more than you are; you must be willing to listen to him or her.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) The more professional your demeanor today, the better your chances — but you must also let your own true self shine through at certain times.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Money is likely to change hands for a suspicious reason today — and you'll want to position yourself as favorably as possible.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your comments about a certain situation may be taken the wrong way at first — until others see your point of view more clearly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Information you receive today may not be completely accurate. It's important that you have a reliable source at hand.

VOLUNTEER FOR MALARIA RESEARCH STUDIES

In 2010, there were an estimated 216 million cases of malaria worldwide. Currently, there is no effective malaria vaccine.

Healthy adults 18 to 45 years old are needed to participate in a malaria vaccine research study.

This study tests if an experimental vaccine is safe and can prevent infection following exposure to the malaria parasite. If the vaccine does not prevent infection and volunteers develop malaria symptoms, they will receive immediate treatment which is curative.

Study volunteers will be compensated for their participation, estimated to last between 12 and 52 weeks.

To volunteer, call 1-866-833-LIFE (toll-free) or TTY 1-866-411-1010, email vaccines@nih.gov, or visit www.vrc.nih.gov.
